A COSTLY BUREAU.

THE FORCE INCREASING AS THE WORK DIMINISHES.

COMMISSIONER DOUGLASS'S STATEMENT AS TO THE NUMBER OF PERSONS EMPLOYED IN THE INTER-NAL REVENUE BUREAU-ALLEGED INACCURACIES IN HIS FIGURES—THE INCREASE IN EXPENSES OUT OF PROPORTION TO THE INCREASE IN FORCE.

the Editor of The Tribune. Sin: In answer to a resolution of the House, a statement of the number of persons employed in the Isternal Revenue service, Dec. 1, 1866, and Dec. 1, 1873, was submitted, accompanied by a letter of Commissioner Douglass, in which he submits a so-called "sum-mary of facts" to show the reason "for the increase of the clerical force of the Internal Revenue Bureau proper since the year 1865." The substance of this "summary of facts" is an enumeration of various reports now reperiod and examined, unknown in 1866; certain assess-ments transferred to the office by the act of Dec. 24, 1872, and the adjustment each month of some 700 gaugers' accounts and the counting of stamps. This is all very well so far as it goes, but if some person should attempt to show the present force of the office by taking the number employed Dec. 1, 1866, and adding thereto the number since appointed or employed, without taking into account the number who have died, resigned, or otherwise gone out of the service, the Commissioner would have complained of it as an unfair statement. Yet this is precisely the method which the Commisconer adopts, either from ignorance or with the intent According to the Commissioner's report, the amount

bers $311,000,000, and in 1867 $266,000,000, or an average of $283,000,000 per year; and these taxes then imposed reached almost every trade, occupation, business, product, and person, nearly all requiring an assessment, and requiring an army of officers to administer the law. For the year ending June 30, 1873, the collections were 8114,000,000, of which about $4,000,000 required an assess ment, and the whole was collected from four or five general sources only. The statement furnished (Exec. Doc. No. 99) shows the whole number of persons em played in the Bureau proper, Dec. 1, 1866, to have been 1, or 63 less than was allowed under the act of July 13 provious, reorganizing the office, while Dec. 1, 1873, the number employed was 294, including the Solicitor, whom the Commissioner omits, because nominally made an officer of the Department of Justice, although he cupies the same desk and performs the duties as before. This is an increase of 101 over the number on Dec. that the collection of $311,000,000 from sources reaching every trade, occupation, business, or person would repairs a greater amount of correspondence, a arger number of accounts and reports, and issue of more numerous forms, regulations and instructions, &c., than the collection of one-third parent to need argument or illustration. That the remai of over $235,000,000 of taxes would relieve the office | to these there is a preparatory school. as that it would reduce the force necessary outside the office proper. Consequent upon this repeal of taxes there was a reduction of the outside force, and, of course, of the accounts and reports received from them, sessors, 241; Assistant Assessors, 3,318; Tobacco Incalled Agents), 153; Inspectors of Coal Oil, 166; Special Agents, 10; Revenue Agents (corresponding to Superinspectors of distilled spirits or distilleries were to be appointed, whose duties were the same as performed by Storekeepers and Gaugers antinity. The number of these, Dec. 1, substantially. 1856, is set down at 1.702. Under the pres-ent law there were in commission, Dec. 1, 1873, 942 Store-Gaugers only 700 were employed on the average, as that is the number of accounts settled monthly. Referring the annual report of the Commissioner, we find that of the 1,195 Storekeepers in commission, July 1, 1873, only 624 were actually employed. The number of dis tilleries in operation on June 1 was 311, giving two Store-keepers to each. This is needless; but, taking these figures, the number of Storekoepers and Gaugers em ployed was 1,324 only.

office in adjusting accounts. Here is a reduction of 16 Collectors and 241 Assessors, whose accounts were to be accounts to be adjusted monthly there were 3,318 Assistant Assessors, 178 Inspectors or Detectives, 10 Special d 12 Revenue Agents, making a total of 3,548, against, in 1873, 1.324 Storekeepers and Gaugers, 25 Detectives or ere were 2.130 more accounts to be adjusted monthly Dec. 1, 1867, than on Dec. 1, 1873, and for the year ending June 30, 1857, the average monthly payment on these counts was $248,000, while in 1873 it was only about $130,000. It does not seem to have occurred to the Comoner that the 3,318 Assistant Assessors' accounts n which he lays so much stress. The Commissioner states that the average monthly payments to Gaugers are over $70,000, while the report of the Fifth Auditor indicates that they have not been paid after Jan. 21, 1873, as he only reports the payments for the six months ending at that time, and for these six months their pay was only $61,443 28 per month. During the year ending Jone 30, 1867, the Inspectors cost the Government, for salary and expenses, $1,042 59 each, while in 1873 the 25 Detectives or Agents, with the me duties, cost 80,159 04 each; i. c., the same offices in 1813 cost the Government three times as much as in 1866.

Commissioner's practical economy is to reduce the number of offices, but at the same time to keep up the cost

For the year ending June 30, 1809, during which every eingle distillery registered was required by law to be surveyed and its producing capacity determined, there was paid to surveyors of distilleries for salary and expenses, $21,575 62. During the year 1873 there was nothing which was required to be done by Surveyors except to survey such new distilleries as might be registered, or Deputy Collectors. At the rate (86 per day) stated by the Commissioner, this would have employed 14 men $1,237 each in addition to the salary. Thus it seems ts make them originally. Again, for the year ending June 39, 1866, the salaries of the officers and clerks of the Bureau were $277,672 71: add contingent expenses Bhreau were $27,07271; and contingent expenses, $40,050.02; total, $317,65.73. For the year ending June $0,1887, the salaries of officers and clerks of the bureau, including salary and expenses of the Special Commissioner, which amounted the preceding year to over $22,000. were $08,997.53; contingent expenses, $87,000.00; total, $36,001.19. For the year ending June 30, 1873, the salaries of officers and clerks of the Eureau were $359.583.72; contingent expenses, $187,631.63 is charred as salary, but for what officers or by whom the officers were appointed or employed, or under what law, does not appear; but it does appear that the bare salary of the last year exceeds the total expenses of either of the other years, while the contingent expenses have increased from less than $40,000 average to over $187,000. Again, the number of special and Revenue Agents and Inspectors employed in 1866 was 200; salary and expenses, $17.53.131; while in 1873 the number of Supervisors, Detectives or Agents, and Surveyurs, was 49, costing $210,725.17. With a decrease of 151 in the number there was an increase in the aggregate expense of $80,903.85.

Now, with all this increase of force and the remarkable addition to the expense, it is an undoubted fact that in the collection of the whishy tax alone there is a failing off the first half of the fiscal year of some ten or twelve inditions, a fact which it is looped that the Commissioner may be able to explain as satisfactorily as he has explained the increase of force and expense.

With these sight corrections of the "summary of facts," I reproduce the Commissioner's closing paragraph: $40,093 02; total, $317,765 73. For the year ending June

Traph:

It will thus be readily seen that the increase of the number of persons emblered in this Bureau is not compensation with the great increase in the smooth of work devolved upon it by the changes in the internal Research laws sizes 1506.

For positiveness of assertion the Commissioner is unequated, but it is evident that he is not familiar with the 'facts,' or cless he must have a very poor opinion of the ordinary Congressional understanding.

Washington, D. C., April 10, 1874.

COTTON PROSPECTS IN TEXAS. The Galveston Cotton Exchange recently sent out inquiries to every county in the State of Texas in reference to the prospects of the cotton crop, and re-ceived 116 replies from 54 countles, covering the period between March I and April 1. The results of the investigation are stated as follows:

First: Has the season thus far been favorable for planting and crop preparations, or otherwise 1 38 coun-ties reply unfavorably; too much rais. 16 counties reply favorably.

Scond: Will the average in cotton in your neighborhood be greater or less than in 1873, and to what extent it counties reply—Increased acreage of 15 per cent. It counties reply—Decreased acreage of 16 per cent. It counties reply—Boreased acreage of 16 per cent. It pounties reply—Sum eagreage as last year.

Third: What has been the increase or diminution per cent of productive labor in your neighborhood during the past season? 25 counties reply—Increase of 10 per cent. 12 counties reply—Decrease of 6 per cent. 17 counties reply—Bame as last year.

Fourth: How are the laborers working? 54 counties reply—Working well. It is proper to remark that many of the correspondents explain the decrease in acreage by the heavy planting of corn and the smaller grains. Yet experience proves that the cry of "plant corn" always results in increased cotton planting, each planter relying upon his neighbor to plant more grain, and looking to an individual advantage by increased cotton culture; and it is probable that the next report will show a larger increase in planting than the present information indicates.

NOTES ON EDUCATION.

The Juniors at Yale are studying Hadley's History of the English Language.

The annual examination in the Artillery School at Fortress Mouroe has just been held.

The Louisiana State Agricultural and Mechanical College is going into operation in New-Orleans. A Theological class for ladies is about to be naugurated at Edinburgh by Prof. Macgregor of the Free Church College.

Gen. Dedrick of Vicksburg will eulogize Charles Sumner during the commencement ceremonles at Alcorn University, June 17.

The University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., is in good condition, having nearly 200 students. Coal was lately discovered on the University property. An institution to be called the Agassiz College is to be established at Red Wing, Minn. The cost will probably be $50,000, and the success of the plan will be somewhat dependent upon divers improvements to be made about the city.

The Newark Advertiser says that the fact that eight Freshmen have been dropped at the end of the second term at Princeton is an indication that the Faculty of the College are determined to maintain the standard to which the College has been raised.

has finally passed the Pennsylvania House of Representatives. The Philadelphia Age opposes this bill on the grounds that it completely ignores the Constitution and also enacts a statute that must be pronounced null by the courts.

The West Virginia Superintendent of Free Schools proposes to establish six normal institutes in the State for the improvement of its teachers, such im provement, he intimates, being much needed. The meetings will all be held in July with the exception of the first appointed for June.

The North-Western University at Evanston has students to the prosperous number of 1,027. The deing colleges: College of Literature and Science, College of Technology, College of Literature and Art (Woman's College), Conservatory of Music, College of Theology, College of Law, and College of Medicine. In addition

The Herald of Philadelphia wisely concludes that it is idle to talk of reform in school-books unti-teaching itself be reformed, and says it is time that teachers learned that the most valuable lessons that can be instilled into the mind of youth are not to be found in books and that their senses may be profitably em-ployed in other ways than by conveying to the brain the preceptions of the dry husks of knowledge in the ordinary text books.

Such of the Prussian schoolmasters as are to give secular instruction, says Matthew Arnold, have only an oral examination in divinity and are not examined in Hebrew, as those who are to give the religious instruction; but they must satisfy the Examining Commission as to their acquaintance with Scripture and with the dogmatic and moral tenets of Christianity. Candidates weak in their divinity have this weakness noted in their certificate, and the Provincial School Boards are directed not to appoint any teacher weak in this particular until he has been re-examined and has passed satisfactorily.

The London Daily News says in speaking of education of women, that whether their powers will ever extend to such enormous spells of sustained mental labor as Mr. Galton has recently noted to be the marked reasonably be doubted. It adds: "But there is much, very much good and useful work to be done by less grantic-possibly more delicately-adjusted force. Every evidence adduced of the essential difference of the sexes is, in fact, an additional argument for the higher culture of that sex whose gifts and faculties remain yet almost half undeveloped and unknown."

London Examiner in favor of free schools in England, says that their present system involves an immense waste of teaching power, a fact which appears also in Germany. A Professor of Natural History in University College, London, whose fame was European, for a series of years had classes which could always be counted on the fincers. Another bad result of the system which be otes is the expense of highly educating a family, whi he calls a "great moral mischief to the gentry." one side," he says, "it leads to delaying marriage too ong, and on the other makes it harder to be content with comparative poverty, by which a father becomes incapable of fitly educating his children. Men's minds are hereby made less independent; on both sides the evil recoils on the public." The Professor compliments the American system, declaring that our curriculum and text-books are all the product of fresh thought, and that the routine of classical Europe has not been allowed to cripple the most enlarged modern views.

The School of Natural History at Penikese For the same year the 10 special and 12 Revenue Agents cost in salary and expenses about $3,600 each, while in 1873 the Supervisors cost over $0,000, showing that the 1910 is paid for the use of the room and furniture for the season. Among the instructors for the session of '74 will be Dr. A. S. Packard, jr., of Salem. Mass., who will have charge of the instruction on Articulates; Prof. B. G. Wilder of Cornell University, who will have charge of the instruction on Vertebrates; Prof. E. S. Morse of Salem, and Prof. C. E. Hamlin, Assist, Mus. Comp. Zool., who will have charge of the instruction on Moliusca; Mr. F. W. Putnam, Director of the Peabody Academy of Science, who will have charge of the instruction on Fishes; and Mr. Edwin Bicknell, Assist. Mus. Comp. Zool., who will have charge of the instruction on Microto revise such of the old surveys as the Commissioner chould determine needed revision or correction, and for scopy. Prof. A. M. Mayer of the Stevens Institute, this service there was paid for salary $23,589 26, and for expenses $17,315, exclusive of expenses of Assessors or Mr. Theodore Lyman, Assist. Mus. Comp. Zoöl., will deliver a few lectures on Pisciculture; and Dr. W. S. Barnard of Ithaca, N. Y., a few lectures on Protozoa. 289 days each during the year at a cost for expenses of Prof. D. S. Jordan of Appleton, Wis., will take charge of ti,237 each in addition to the salary. Thus it seems ts the instruction in Marine Botany; Mr. Alex. Agassiz, cost much more to revise the existing surveys than to Curator Mus. Comp. Zeol., Radiates and Embryology; Dr. Packard and Mr. S. W. Garman will take charge of the Dredging Expeditions, and Mr. P. Roetter, Artist of Mus. Comp. Zoöl., will give instruction in Drawing.
